From our Rabbi

Years of prosperity had not prepared the Children of Israel for a life of slavery. Pharaoh's Hebrew Prime Minister, Joseph, invited his father, brothers, sister and their families to leave the famine of Canaan for a life of prosperity in Egypt. The descendants of Abraham were given the choicest pastoral lands in the area of Goshen. The Israelites became prominent and wealthy members of Egyptian society. As a seven year famine descended upon the land, the Egyptian masses forfeited first their lands and later their freedom in exchange for food. As long as Joseph lived and a sympathetic Pharaoh ruled, the members of Joseph's family would remain both financially and politically secure. This would soon change after Joseph's death and the deposition of a friendly Egyptian ruler.

Not long after Joseph's death, a Pharaoh came to power that refused to acknowledge Joseph's role in saving his kingdom from mass starvation. Quite the opposite, the new Egyptian ruler blamed the Hebrews for causing all the country's economic problems. To win the support of the masses, Pharaoh claimed that the rapid growth of the Hebrew population would soon overwhelm the Egyptian population. To win the political support of his subjugated masses, Pharaoh decreed that all Hebrew males should be drowned in the Nile River. Only the intervention of two righteous Egyptian midwives, Shifra and Puah, prevented Pharaoh's plan from succeeding. Ironically, it would be the daughter of Pharaoh who would become the catalyst for the ultimate freedom of the Children of Israel. By rescuing the infant Moses, Pharaoh's daughter would set the stage for her father's defeat.

Only reluctantly would the Children of Israel come to accept Moses as their leader. His formative years were spent in the lap of luxury as a member of Pharaoh's household. Forced into exile after killing an Egyptian officer Moses witnessed beating a Hebrew slave, Moses would return to demand that Pharaoh let his people go. Every request for freedom, despite a series of devastating plagues which included turning the Nile into a pool of blood, frogs overrunning the land, and lice, wild animals and a total darkness affecting every Egyptian household, was met with a refusal to free the Children of Israel. It was only the most catastrophic of all plagues, the DEATH OF THE EGYPTIAN FIRST BORN, that would ultimately force Pharaoh to let our people go. After their departure, Pharaoh realized that he just emancipated a major segment of his labor force. Pharaoh amassed a large military contingent to forcefully bring the Israelites back to Egypt. At the same time, many of the former slaves, fearing death in the desert, clamored to return to Egypt. Only their safe passage following the splitting of the Reed Sea would convince these newly freed slaves that G-d had a master plan for them. The acceptance of the G-d of Israel would only come after the sea closed drowning the entire Egyptian army. The older generation, only knowing what it meant to be slaves, would die in the desert. They were not psychologically ready to experience freedom. A younger generation born in the desert would enter the Promised Land. With the Torah as their guide, this generation would establish a Jewish society fulfilling G-d's Promise to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. The descendants of the Patriarchs would become as numerous as the stars in the Heavens and the sands of the Earth. As G-d's Chosen People, they would become an "Ohr la-Olam", a cultural light to all nations. And no matter how far the Jewish People strayed from this awesome responsibility, G-d would guarantee their survival throughout the ages.

Let us celebrate our freedom by guaranteeing the freedom of others. Let us take concrete steps to ensure that hatred is eradicated throughout the world. Let us provide for the less fortunate the means to become self sufficient. Let us make every effort to ensure that no one is excluded from the fruits of their labor. Only by providing for the less fortunate can we all become part of G-d's blessings.

Passover is just around the corner. I hope everyone has a happy Passover.

Now that the weather is getting nicer more people are coming to the synagogue which is so nice. For those who cannot make it, I understand it isn't always easy. Synagogues including ours also need people who financially contribute. If you are not already a member please join. If you have young children we do have a fund set up for camp scholarships. If you don't wish to join please consider a donation to help keep the synagogue open and functioning.

If you have a desire to learn how to make the challah we have on Shabbat let me know. I would be happy to teach you.
